①It's unclear whether napping is good for everyone, but research suggests napping, a short-time sleep, can improve some people's overall performance (表现 in the short term. And if people nap regularly (有规律地) at midday, it might also have longer-term benefits(益处) to health.

napping

②For one thing, several studies find that a short-time sleep is good for brain to work well. A 2021 study in Science Advances finds that napping is able to improve reaction (反应) time and memory performance. A short nap can also help with creativity(创造力).

③These benefits of napping are the strongest for people who don't get enough nighttime sleep. A 2014 review of research says when night-time workers, new parents and older people with little nighttime sleep take a nap during night-time work, they feel less sleepy and have better overall performance.

④However, some people may feel tired after napping. That's because they don't time their naps right. Then how long is a well-timed short sleep? A 20-minute nap is useful, the psychologist Dautovich says, and 60 to 90 minutes of sleep can be even more helpful. However, when people sleep for more than 20 minutes and less than 60 minutes, they will feel tired easily.

⑤For another, regular short naps also seem to improve brain health in the long term, Garfield and her colleagues at University College London find. People with regular napping genes (基因) have a larger brain volume (大脑容量). All brains lose volume as they age, Garfield says, but taking a nap regularly is able to help slow down your aging for 2.6 to 6.5 years.

⑥Of course, not everyone can nap, Garfield says. And there are other healthy habits that could fill 20 minutes a day, such as going on a walk or going to the gym. But if it can fit in your timetable and you are also willing to try, napping will definitely reward you in many ways.

40. From a 2021 study in Science Advances, napping can help to improve_____.
- A. reaction time and creativity B. sports skills and brain volume
- C. brain volume and napping genes D. sports and memory performance
41. According to Dautovich, which is a well-timed nap?
- A. A 25-minute nap. B. A 45-minute nap.
- C. A 70-minute nap. D. A 120-minute nap.
42. The writer probably agrees that_____.
- A. people are tired but more creative after a long night's sleep
- B. regular naps help save brain volume and slow down aging
- C. night-time workers feel sleepy after taking a well-timed nap
- D. taking a short-time nap regularly is a better habit than walking
43. What's the layout(结构)of the passage?

A.

Have you ever been asked to remember a list of words? If so, you might find that it's easier to remember the very first words and the very last words on the list, but you cannot remember the middle part very clearly. This is because the “primacy effect”(首因效应) is at work. The primacy effect means that you tend to(倾向于) remember the very first and very last things on a list better than the things in the middle.

44. _____ The main reason is that people tend to rehearse (默诵) things in order to remember them. This means people find it easier to remember what is shown early because they have practiced the beginning more than things in the middle. In one piece of research, when people are told not to rehearse or are not given enough time to rehearse, the primacy effect disappears.

Another reason is related to attention span (注意力时长). People tend to pay attention at the beginning and at the end of the presentation (演讲), and so things in the beginning are more likely to be remembered. Thinking back to the last conversation you had, the paragraph you read or the show you watched, you probably focused on both the beginning and the end, but in the middle zoned out at some points.

Knowing the power of the primacy effect might help you a lot in life. If there is something that you want to stress: say it first, say it last, or both! This is when it is most likely to be remembered. As student, you can change the order of the words on a list so that you can finally store everything to you long-term memory. Also, try paying attention to the difficult point at the beginning of your study and summarize each time span with another quick review of that point.

So the next time you want to make a good impression, or prepare for an exam, remember to put the above to good use.

44. Which sentence can be put in the blank(空白处) in Paragraph 2?

- A. Then why is there the primacy effect?
- B. Then what is the primacy effect made of?
- C. Then how does the primacy effect work?
- D. Then where can you find the primacy effect?

45. The underlined words "zoned out" in Paragraph 3 probably mean _____.

- A. thought best B. lost attention C. found interest D. felt different

46. Which of the following would be the best title for the passage?

- A. Primacy Effect: a Trick to Get Full Marks
- B. Primacy Effect: a Reason for Life Success
- C. Primacy Effect: a Way to Remember Better
- D. Primacy Effect: a Skill for Communication

第四部分书 面表达(共 31 分)

六、阅读表达(共 10 分，第 47-49 题每小题 2 分，第 50 题 4 分)

阅读短文，根据短文内容回答问题。

Every day, people spend hours and hours on their phones and computers. And it seems impossible for most people to cut out screen time completely. So how can we keep a healthy relationship with digital devices(数字设备)in this fast-moving world?

Anna Marsh, a professor of psychology at University of Toronto, tried not to use the digital devices. After she stopped using them, she felt she had more time to think. So she gives some advice on how to keep a healthy digital diet while using technology(技术).

First, we should care for our brains just as we care for our bodies, by controlling(控制) the digital intake. In fact, reducing our use of the devices is like eating less junk food. What we need to do is think about whether our heavily used apps and websites benefit our life or not. Then we can remove(除) apps like games. After that, add some healthy apps to our phones, such as self-care and learning apps.

Another important thing is to think about why we use them. Too often we reach for our mobile phones and then get lost in the world of the Internet. We forget what we planned to do. So next time we pick up our phones, rethink about what we are going to do: to check the e-mail or to look up a word.

Also, if we focus only on our devices, we will miss out on our lives. That's why we should be careful about the time we spend on the digital devices. For example, we can keep the phones on or near our body all the time. but we'd better only check them once or twice a day. And it's better to put our phones away at dinner or when having family activities. Getting out into nature or doing some exercise is also a good way to stop us from looking at our phones.

47. How did Marsh feel after she stopped using digital devices?

48. What healthy apps can we add to our phones?

49. Why should we be careful about the time we spend on the digital devices?

50. Do you have a healthy digital diet? Why or why not?
